August 2016

Nick,

It's that time of the year again! Depending on where you live, the school year has or will soon begin. The end of summer is the start of a familiar cycle - you're rejuvenated thanks to summer learning, projects and vacations. Teachers and their students from coast to coast feel a special energy, and experience nerves and high hopes for what awaits them. Those high hopes are present at the National Board, too, as more than 12,000 candidates continue their pursuit of "NBCT." This issue of The Boardroom focuses on what's happened this summer, what lies ahead, opportunities and a renewed focus on practical ideas for teachers.

BUILDING THE CONTINUUM

#WhatMattersNow

Last week the National Commission on Teaching and America's Future (NCTAF) released "What Matters Now," which argues that while there have been significant improvements in education since the release of their seminal report "What Matters Most" 20 years ago, the progress has been uneven. They offer recommendations for systemic change in states and districts, which includes encouraging teacher-led professional learning aligned with professional teaching standards. Geneviève DeBose, NBCT, gave the keynote address at the release event.

WATCH THE KEYNOTE

"To be inspired and connected to a room of similarly passionate educators is an emotional lift. It also provides great networking and learning opportunities."

ACADEMY PARTICIPANT

Leveraging Leadership and Inspiring Action

The 2016 National Board Academy was held in Las Vegas, Nevada from July 10-12. This annual event aims to engage stakeholder collaboration, provide a platform to share ideas and create a space to build plans to bring accomplished teaching and National Board Certification to scale. This year's theme was "Leveraging Leadership and Inspiring Action." Of the 184 attendees, 137 were NBCTs from 36 states across the nation. Participants connected with peers to learn more about innovative models and build action-oriented team plans for the 2016-2017 school year.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Accomplished Teachers Win Award for Teaching Excellence

Next February, 43 educators from across the country will receive the NEA Foundation's California

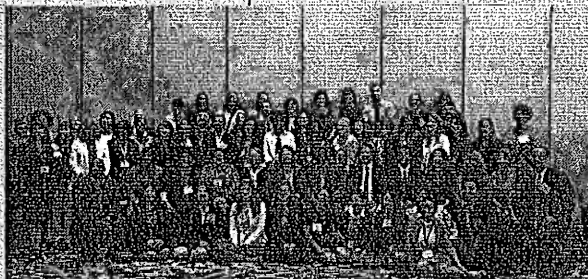

Casualty Award for Teaching Excellence. The prestigious award is given to educators for their dedication to the profession, community engagement, professional development, attention to diversity and advocacy for fellow educators. Twelve of the award recipients are NBCTs.

Agents for Learning

In late July, 55 teachers, including 17 NBCTs, gathered in downtown Chicago as part of the Agents for Learning Competition. Twelve teams of teachers from across the country discussed the best ways states and districts can invest their ESSA funds to support professional learning. The presentations can serve as resources as you advocate in your own state and district for the best ways to invest in professional learning. Check out our ESSA page for additional resources.

How to Kick Off the School Year as a Rookie (or a Mentor)

New teacher orientation often leaves out the top subject on teachers' minds: The first day of school, says Roxanne Elden, NBCT. That's why she created The School Year Starter Kit a free, three-day email series to help newbies cut through information overload and focus on the few, basic things that will most help them prepare for their first day. The kit also offers much-needed reinforcement for those serving as mentors for beginning teachers.

Free college support - through texts to students

First Lady Michelle Obama recently launched Up Next, Better Make Room's text messaging campaign that gives students and families free personalized support on all things college - college search and application, federal student aid and even student loan repayment. The campaign is evidence-based and low-cost, and research has shown that it can significantly increase students' college enrollment and persistence - if students sign up. This is where you come in. Encourage your students to sign up! All they have to do is text "college" to 44044.

Thank A Teacher

National Teacher Appreciation Day, also known as National Teacher Day, is observed on the Tuesday of the first full week in May. This day is part of Teacher Appreciation Week, which is the first full week in May of each year.

The National Education Association describes National Teacher Day "as a day for honoring teachers and recognizing the lasting contributions they make to our lives".

Political and educational leaders first began discussions for a day to honor teachers in 1944. In 1953, Eleanor Roosevelt persuaded the 81st Congress to proclaim National Teachers' Day. Congress declared March 7, 1980, as National Teacher Day. The National Education Association continued to observe Teacher Day on the first Tuesday in March until 1985, when the National PTA established Teacher Appreciation Week as the first full week of May. The NEA Representative Assembly then voted to make the Tuesday of that week National Teacher Day.

Teacher Appreciation Week - May 8-12, 2017

Join us as we celebrate the hard work and important contributions of teachers during National PTA's Teacher Appreciation Week, May 8-12, 2017.

Since 1984, National PTA has designated one week in May as a special time to honor the men and women who lend their passion and skills to educating our children.

This year's theme is "Teachers Deliver." And they do! Teachers deliver so much to our students—inspiration, motivation and, ultimately, their futures. From May 8-12, 2017, we would like to celebrate teachers and deliver our thanks and gratitude to them.

Teachers change the lives of millions of children every day, and their work and impact extends far beyond the boundaries of the classroom.

Take the time to show your appreciation this week.

Here are few ways you can get involved:

- Have your children sign and present ready-made thank-you cards to their teachers!
- Have your school principal, PTA/PTSA President or students sign and present ready-made appreciation certificates to the teachers in your life.
- Share photos and your activities during the week by using the hashtag #ThankATeacher on social media!
- On Thursday, upload a #TBT of you and your favorite teacher and thank them using the official hashtag #ThankATeacher.

Today, on National Teacher's Day, we share this special greeting from State Superintendent Paolo DeMaria, in which he expresses his personal thanks for what educators do year 'round in teaching our state's 1.6 million students.

There are more than 190,000 licensed teachers in Ohio. Many are at work this very day teaching Ohio's students the knowledge and skills they'll need to succeed in higher education, jobs and life. The Ohio Department of Education congratulates these professionals on choosing such an important career. The hard work they do to educate our children ensures that successive generations of Ohioans can live prosperous and satisfying lives, and it generates capable leaders who can help keep our state and our nation strong.

Enjoy today, as well as Teacher Appreciation Week!

1. As originally noted in Wednesday's clips, here is more on this week's Ohio Supreme Court rulings against the state's largest online charter school. And I do mean "against". It ain't over yet, of course, but three rulings in two hours has got to be a tough blow to absorb. (Columbus Dispatch, 7/12/17)

2. As also originally noted in Wednesday's clips, here is more on the third grade reading test "controversy", from a Cleveland perspective. Same "problem" here as in the other districts who begged (and I do mean "begged") the state board of education to do something to help them out – expecting the alternative tests' cut scores to be lower than they were and being horribly wrong. (Cleveland Plain Dealer, 7/13/17)
3. As noted in the clips a few months ago, Lorain is attempting to build an Alumni Club of high school graduates in the area. Here is more on the status of recruitment efforts. Last time, we noted that district and Catholic high school grads were being sought, but this time we learned that alumni can be from "any Lorain school." Interestingly, the district's elected board seems a bit standoffish with regard to the club and what it might want. Perhaps it's because the club's reps seem to have shifted from wanting to raise money to donate for a new stadium at the Colossus of Lorain (a.k.a. its schmancy, new-ish high school) to wanting to help the district pass a levy and spend THAT money on a stadium. (Northern Ohio Morning Journal, 7/13/17)
4. After some weeks of, well, who knows what activity, here is more on Ohio's ESSA plan as finally approved by the state board of education. (Gongwer Ohio, 7/12/17) Said plan is now in the hands of Governor Kasich, who must approve it before it can be submitted to the USDOE. (Cleveland Plain Dealer, 7/13/17)

5. In new news, here's a look at the big changes happening at the former LifeSkills High School in Canton. The charter school aimed at helping students at risk of dropping out get a diploma and work skills at the same time. Changes include a new management company, a new location, and a new name. One of those things is probably more important than the others. (Canton Repository, 7/14/17)
  6. Finally today the dean of Ohio University's College of Education opined this week on the NEA's talking points about teachers and education. Wait. Did I say "on"? I meant "with". (Cincinnati Enquirer, 7/12/17)
